"In this talk, I will consider German visual history and theory and ask if the debate provides a distinct set of questions that distinguishes it from other methods in art history. Using the reception of J.M.W. Turner’s work in the 1970s as a foil, I will ponder the possibility of a new approach that departs from dominant interpretations of the second half of the twentieth century such as iconology and social art history."

Prof. Dr. Charlotte Klonk studied art history at the Universities of Hamburg and Cambridge. From 1993 to 1995 she was a Junior Research Fellow at Christ Church, Oxford University, and from 1995 to 2005 Lecturer at the History of Art Department at the University of Warwick. She has been a Fellow at the Max-Planck-Institute for the History of Science, at the Institute of Advanced Studies in Berlin and the Clark Art Institute in Williamstown MA.
